In my opinion, new technologies are the most important things in our lives. They really help people in daily routine, at work or school and so on. All of us use them every day.

Nowadays, new technologies as mobile phones, social network sites or Internet are the most useful things which really help us. For example, if a student do homework and he needs more information about something, then he will be able to find it on Internet. It is the fastest way than just reading ~~to~~ books and find what a person needs. Or as an another example, I can say that using social network is also the easiest way to communicate with your friends, family, classmates, teachers and etc. All you need are just a different mobile gadget and special applications where you can text or call someone.

But on the other side, new technologies can have bad effects on people. Our society becomes more lazier. As an example to approve it, I can mention that more and more people use different deliveries, because they don't want to go to stores or shops. Also, books aren't so useful now, because people prefer watching different videos more than reading. Their speech becomes more awful.

I think that new technologies are good for people, but they shouldn't dedicate all their lives to them.
